

BFA0215 stands at 1.78m tall, with dark brown hair, brown eyes and a small bone structure. He has a friendly, open nature that makes him a real joy to be around. He is always happy to engage with us, share stories from his day-to-day life and talks openly about his hopes and ambitions for the future.

We affectionately call him our “Action Man”, as he is rarely sitting still and is always getting involved in something active. He is extremely athletic, with rock climbing being his favourite sport—something he enjoys regularly. However, his interests extend far beyond sport. He loves learning new languages and has a genuine interest in Geography and History, reflecting his curious and adventurous nature.

One of the qualities we particularly admire in him is his relaxed approach to life. He takes things in his stride and is not easily fazed. At the same time, he is strong-willed, determined and possesses an impressive inner strength. He is also very much in touch with his emotions and has a wonderful balance of physical and mental resilience with genuine warmth, compassion and sensitivity.

He speaks fondly of the love and compassion he has learned from his mum and her family, as well as the positive examples they have given him throughout his life. These influences are clearly reflected in the person he has become and in the way he treats others.

His ambitions are equally inspiring. He hopes to travel more, live a wholesome and meaningful life, and help people wherever he can. He is passionate about life and curious about the world, while remaining calm, grounded and compassionate.

He is a beautiful mix of happiness, calmness, compassion and strength. His open and relaxed personality makes him wonderful company, and we always look forward to his visits. He is genuinely a pleasure to spend time with, and we love hearing about his latest adventures, interests and plans for the future.
