

BFA0218 is a tall, quietly confident gentleman, standing at 180cm, with blue eyes, light brown hair and a small bone structure. A naturally calm and composed person, he is unfailingly polite, punctual and respectful, and makes a genuine effort to engage with staff whenever he visits. He has a Bachelor's degree in Mathematics and is a teacher and Head of Department. He also speaks French, reflecting both his academic ability and his interest in learning and communication.

By nature, he is an introvert, but he becomes more relaxed and open when surrounded by friends and those he feels comfortable with. He is empathetic, reliable and patient, with a strong belief in resolving difficulties through communication. A natural pacifist, he prefers to discuss problems openly and constructively before they have the opportunity to develop into conflict. He is a steady and dependable person who values routine and consistency, while remaining open to change when needed. His thoughtful and considered nature is reflected in his interests. Music is a particularly important part of his life, and he has a real appreciation for words and puzzles, having published crosswords and enjoying cryptic crosswords.

Overall, he is a gentle, intelligent and considerate individual: calm under pressure, dependable in his relationships with others, and someone who values communication, friendship, family and the quieter pleasures of life.